because the convention did not expressly and by name excommunicate the seven Senators who secured acquittal, and, thirdly, because of any reference to protection or "home industry." That State is now demanding an increase of the tariff, and the foremost politicians have written here, that without there is no use of attempting a canvass. But as Congress has no idea of touching the tariff, finance or any other large question at this session, Pennsylvania is going "hook and line."

A very kind and even grateful feeling is entertained toward Chief Justice Chase and the Senators who contributed to defeat impeachment, but they do not claim to have renounced their political affiliations or to have adopted the views and policy of their opponents. Quite the contrary. They defend their position by saying impeachment was not a party question, but a judicial one, and therefore that no separation was involved.

If it were at all probable under such circumstances, as it is not, to offer either the Chief Justice or any of the Senators, who took more responsibility than he did, a place on the ticket to be named as New York, it would serve to raise a clamor and to give ground for the false assumption, already spread abroad, that acquittal was a matter of arrangement and of corrupt collusion. None of these distinguished men could afford to take office on such terms. They have a higher and better reward now in the respect and gratitude of the nation.

A post mortem examination of the remains of the late Radical party will be held at the Capitol this evening, when measures will be taken for the interment. Wade, Wilson, Fenton, Hamlin, Stanton and Curtin are announced as pallbearers, together with Grant and Colfax as chief mourners.

Why the Revenue is Short.

Less than sixty days ago an up town revenue collector pounced upon a brewer, and shut it up. Cause—one of the parties of the concern had been purchasing "second-hand" revenue stamps, of the ale retailers, and using them over again. The fraud would perhaps have not been "let out," had not the retailers from whom these dollars were purchased at the fifty per cent. bribe for "information," and so they duly "infomed" the up-town collector named "ten thousand dollars" as the price of a "let off." Parties would not or could not come down; weeks went on, and the collector threatened to confiscate and sell. The brewer could not, or would not, pay the ten thousand, and so "let out." This was not the game, however. By going ahead and confiscating, Government would get its legal rights and collector would get only his legal rights. That would not do at all. The unimpeachable and honest public servant became more docile and less desperate in his demands; he would take "five thousand." Brewer would not respond; more time was lost. At last, one of the Washington cabal, Secretary Go-sucks, arrived in town, and the intricable refractory brewer was politely invited to the office of the collector, and a compromise was effected. The amount paid was three thousand dollars. Secretary Go-sucks and the unimpeachable collector each pocketed thirteen hundred dollars, and the starving and hungry Treasury of the United States obtained the sum of four hundred dollars out of the three thousand, while the "infomers," or those feeling a vast deal deeper interest in the Government than in their own affairs, did not get the first smelt of the reward of their loyalty. It is a singular fact that in the whole history of revenue seizures brought about by "infomers," not one of them has ever been paid a dollar for their noble agency in the matter. Tax payers now see the beautiful workings of the Union revenue system. The machinery is run for the benefit of the Washington thieves, and their dirty official tools all over the Union. It is a conjugation of stealing—I steal, thou steal, he steals—we steal, ye or you steal, they steal. Was there ever on God's earth so infamous a crew as now run the Government of this miserable country? And to think that these creatures are actually planning to take another lease of it! Let the working-tax-paying voter look ahead, and see that the future promises. Let him view the picture as it now looks up, and then let him take a retrospective, embracing 1852 to 1860, and compare it with 1860 to 1868. Will he allow his bone and muscle to be kept grinding for the benefit of a party which has produced such a change? We think not. November will tell.—New York Day Book.

The Autopsy of the Radical Party—of What it Did, and by Whom it is to be Buried.

A Washington correspondent of more than usual sagacity, gives the following view of the situation of the Radical party:

Sufficient time has now elapsed since the Chicago Convention to speak of the effect of the nominations made there, and the political prospect as viewed from this central point.

The ticket has fallen flat and produced no impression whatever. There are various reasons for this fact, but the main one is the identification of General Grant with the Radical wing of the party, and his full acceptance of all their policy, including impeachment, which he advocated openly and even violently, as is well known here, and as General Logan and Mr. Judd, of Illinois, emphatically declared at Chicago.

General Grant went over to the Radicals, and abandoned his previous Con-servative tendencies last October, at which time Washburn came to Washing-ton to arrange the programme, and Gen. Rawlings was sent West to make a speech, revealing his chief's conversion to the doctrines of Thad. Stevens and the "Mountain."

Ever since that time he has been losing ground, and is now even weaker than the party, because it is admitted that he brings no outside strength, and excites no enthusiasm, while old and straight-faced Republicans will hold his nomination as an abandonment of principle.

It is absurd to suppose that Colfax adds a particle of influence to the concern. Any ward politician would be equally strong, and he is of the same di-mensions of a ward politician, only raised to the national level.

There are tens of thou-sands of the same class and genus scat-tered over the Union, many of whom are smirking mediocrity occupies the chair once filled by Henry Clay.

The Radicals relied upon the success of impeachment as their last and only hope of carrying the Presidential election. That defeated, they substantially admit the game to be lost. Their plan was for Stanton to organize the whole South into a compact Radical column, to declare martial law in Kentucky and Maryland under some fabricated pretext, in order to exclude their votes, and then by coercion and corruption to secure enough of the East and West to count themselves into power. This scheme required the aid of Wade to make it a success. With Johnson in the White House it falls to the ground, and with it all the hopes of the revolutionists.

Imagine it as they may, the Wade men are intensely indignant, and will do little to help the ticket. Their chief has given no such endorsement as is pretended by the Radical organs. On the contrary, he swears like "our army in Flanders," and says that he was sold out. It is no-torious that the Southern delegates, who were pledged to him, were bought by the New York jobbers at various rates, and many of them as cheap as their hotel bills. This open bargain and sale is now urged here as a reason against the ad-mission of those States by many ex-temperata, and if their votes were not counted upon in November, they would not be allowed to come in at all.

It is now conceded by leading and competent Radicals that Pennsylvania is lost by a large majority, first, because of the failure of impeachment; second,

A Wolf in the Fold.

A tall, clerical-looking "cuss," who wears his hair parted on the right side near the middle, and which is profes-sionally long and black; who wears kid gloves and carries a gold-headed cane; whose age is about thirty-sevens, and whose shirt is always of the purest white; a man who goes to church more regu-larly than anybody and one who wor-ships there most devoutly; a man who is always shocked at every thing in the slightest degree immoral. In short, a man who is propriety itself, has for a long time been playing seditious games over the morals of several beautiful young ladies—one particularly teach-ing them vocal music and always leaning toward the sacred styles, such as "sams, hins, and spiritual songs." He has also taken one of them once or twice to an ice cream saloon, and occa-sionally on a buggy ride, though always questioning somewhat the morality of the late pleasure. The buggy rides have of late increased in frequency, until the last few weeks, and upon one of those rides it seems that our "religiously moral" friend made overtures to his dear charge accompanied by promises of marriage, and by the force of his fair speeches suc-ceeded in gaining possession of her per-son and charms, robbing her at the same time of a jewel, the loss of which, if known, would rank her with the Cyprian element of society. The young lady is an orphan and without enough of this world's goods to make any boast of, and when she began to insist upon the performance of her "protector's" promises of a mar-riage, he completely "backed out," not being able to "see it out," whereupon she exposed him, and as our hero is "engaged to another," a very rich young widow, her threats were somewhat alarming, and he agreed to pay her $800 to "keep shady." To this she finally acceded, and the "filthy lucre" was handed over. For a while matters seemed gliding along as smoothly as a female skatist on slick ice, and his rich widow was approaching; but the fair lady has had another change to fit across the "spirit of her dreams." She again demands matrimony, but having an eye to the main chance, is willing to compromise once more upon the small, snug sum of $5000 in the currency of the country. This is more than old "morality" can stand, and he declares he'll "fight it out on that line if it takes all summer." Who will not be upon the "queer side" to learn the rich and racy "quitting" developments? There is just for the million ahead.—Louisville Journal, June 1.

Congressional Proscription of the Boys in Blue.

One thing is very certain, so far as the "White Boys in Blue" in this city are concerned, that the acts of the Grant Congress are setting them, like the steel of their trusty weapons, against the array of the Jacobins, including Grant at the head. Aside from the general reason against that sort of strategy of the "onward to Richmond" faction, which idly, uselessly and inhumanly threw away as vile things the lives and limbs and vigor of from fifty to one hundred thousand soldiers in the jungles of the Wilderness, just as did Hooker be-fore him at the beck of the War Depart-ment, and as also did Burnside at Fred-ericksburg, there is now intensely added on the part of the soldiery at this point deep indignation in that their old right to vote as residents in the city has been denied by the action of the Grant-Col-fax Congress.

The soldiers, too, have heard of the severe punishment that came to their demands at Carlisle barracks for resolv-ing that the President is their constitu-tional commander. Soldiers are out-raged by the espionage established here by Stanton, whereby Mr. Baker-Butler is allowed to employ waiters (where he can do so) and the negro lazzaroni of the Freedman's Bureau to dog the steps of Democrats and Conservatives, and seek the within doors and without to overthrow the conservation of citizens. Congress with its Grant, Butler, Howard, and Colfax instrumentalities, does in reality closely approximate the "bow-string" and "sack" straps of the East.—National Intelligencer.

The Purp.

A low, mean, contemptible scoundrel, by the name of Bard, whose soul, materialized, could reveal in infinite space inside the shell of a mustard seed, gave notice a few days since in the bogus Legislature that he "would at some future day introduce a bill to adopt the gray uniform of the uniform of the con-tractors of the State prison; and that per-sons convicted of man-slaughter be en-titled to wear the insignia of the rank of Colonel, and so on down to the lowest rank of crime."

A man who can stoop to insult a fallen foe would steal the vomit from a sick dog, and play poker on his mother's tomb at a chiquepin anti. But all such rebound upon the heads of the pusillani-mous movers. That cause, though lost, is not dead, unless republican govern-ment be dead also. It will live in the hearts of all true Southern patriots long after the puppy Bard shall be turning Sid-paps in the lake of fire and brimstone. But perhaps the poor, quackish Confed-erates in the habitments of honor. If he wished to degrade the Confederate uniform, the most effectual way of doing so would be for him to don a suit of it himself, for no good Confederate soldier could ever look upon it again except with loathing and disgust.—Arkadelphia Standard.

It is a political axiom that "power is ever stealing from the many to the few." The negroes in the South are now a "power," and they are certainly "steal-ing from the many."—Louis Journal.
